

Visioning 2010 ... A look at the year ahead through the Visionary Network's global eyes

This is the year where the NEW really shows up everywhere, in business, politics, education, relationships, media ... everything! It's where we get to live as the magical, amazing beings that we are, passionately creating and wondrously connected ... to one another and to Life as a whole!

Read on to discover how some of our Visionary Network creators view the wonderful possibilities of 2010!

From Judi Richardson in Canada

"2010 you ask -- an amazing year that brings a greater quality of awareness to our everyday lives in the miraculous. Clear sailing spaces abound -- "obstacles" are a thing of the past -- "struggle" stricken from the dictionary! People everywhere are relaxing into their passion and their power -- thus unleashing newer realms of true collaboration. Playfulness is a new "currency" in 2010 -- as we give and take pleasure in our day to day lives we remember how valuable that sense of lightness is from our childhood. Playfulness unlocks our unique brilliance, opens our genius, and fully allows others to go where they need to go while we stay in the realms of ecstatic pleasure-filled lives that invite others back with us in this realm. I'm surrounded by people who are fearless in their pride of place, choose to be content in their lives, are committed to their happiness and sense of wellbeing so that there is no need to judge others as they find their way thereby increasing our sense of wellbeing. Potential is alive and well -- no longer the "amorphous thing" people refer to -- potential potentializes in each and every conscious thought and as we cultivate our imagination -- thoughts and potential blissfully collide!! Technology expands to easily connect those of us standing for happiness, wellbeing and the magnificence in each and every single person."

From Andriana Natterer in Australia

"2010 will bring many bejeweled wonders. An explosion of creativity will herald this New Era of growth and expansion. Our expression of our unique selves and the actions that will follow them, will mark a new way of being. We have completely let go of the old and have stepped into the new, and are now growing that and moving forward. Our outstretched arms are ready to receive the cosmic gifts that have awaited our arrival. In our leap forward we are in readiness for the miraculous new world fast approaching us, that we ourselves have collectively envisioned."

From Soleira Green in the UK

"2009 was the year of integration, learning to live as bigger beings fulfilling the power of possibility. 2010 will take us to unprecedented new heights as magical ability surges through us all and the miraculous becomes more natural and available. It's a year of fully becoming and really living who we are, of striding into new horizons with gusto and verve. We're learning not to be afraid of change, but to seek it with great glee and delight for the marvels it holds! We no longer need tragedy to pull us together, but unite all around the world in a gigantic web of creation. Unique genius will come more to the fore. Greatness will show up in the most unlikely of people, inspiring us all further into our own potentiality and contribution. Those that have been playing on the leading edge will now be called mainstream by the growing desire for the NEW. We don't have to wait for 2012 to feel the NEW in play. It's already here now, ready for us to live within. We are the beings, we are reshaping this world together and we will profoundly stir a vibrant new reality into play. THIS IS THE YEAR WE'VE BEEN WAITING FOR!"

From Joanna Brill in Singapore

"In 2010 vision and possibilities will be streaming fully across the planet. There will be a new alertness for what is new and brilliant everywhere. The whole world will really start to look up and out rather than down and in. People know now that there is a new way of focusing so that we give attention to what is amazing and special and collectively point to the wonderful things that are emerging in the world. With the amazing connectedness that is available to all of us it is easy to start to see how wonderful movement is emerging across the world to create things differently. As my own network of connections extends further around the world I am meeting more and more resonant others, all calling for new ways of being and doing things. I can see new waves of openness and authenticity sweeping the planet, where people start to connect and see each other on whole new levels. People can explore new states of grace and expansion too. I am so excited that as the Visionary Network we can shine a brighter light to liberate more fully all the amazing potential that is available to each and every one of us, individually and collectively."

From Santari Green in the UK

"2010 - a moment of revelation - a year of celebration.

I ask what is being revealed and realise that everything is entering into a new state of profound self awareness, where the veils of who we have been drop away and are forgotten. A new sense of delight bursts through the world as we discover what it is to truly live together, in full recognition of all our gifts and unique beingness. We uncover a sense of how to live as a collective being, rippling and radiating the power of what we feel from the core and totality of all that we are.

There is a celebration of full-blown deliciousness in being alive; knowing that we can live now the reality of our collective design and can engender profound relationships with every being worldwide. It's a time for being responsible for being alive, taking that responsibility as an encouragement to live bold and unleashed. A time for loving our physicalness, delighting in what we create of ourselves, exploring every nuance of our living, and living the full vision of what can be. ### From Dorothy Eckes in the USA

"2010 is presenting us with imagination piquing opportunities to launch creations from new ideas, new ways of doing things, and freedom to collaborate and co-create with inventive enthusiasm and joy. Fluidity and flexibility with old patterns and protocol opens the door for curiosity and adventure in our endeavors. Everything from education/learning to families to government to business is reflecting this fresh magical way of leveraging uniqueness and exploring new frontiers. Each day is a wide opportunity to explore, create from and experience potential."

From Manisha Dahad in the UK

"2010 will be an amazing year of super connectedness!! with our fellow beings, animals, plants and all of life!! And through this connectedness an enormous energy will be created to bring our creations into reality effortlessly! All beings will connect beyond races, countries and worlds to bring new ways of existence that will light up everyone and bring their uniqueness into play. A year of creation, play and collaboration."

From Peter Natterer in Australia

"Yesterday was the last day of 2009. What a journey it has been! We have seen such water under the bridges of our lives, such that we could never have imagined before. There are things and ideas in place now that even fifteen, twenty years ago we would never have thought of.

The increasing rate of connectivity has become a crazy spiralling avalanche descending on us with increasing volume. We are connected now in ways that even the science fiction writers, those wise-men of future things-to-be had dared not envisage.

What fuels this incredibly dizzying ride of connectivity we are on is our own intense desire to be connected. Faster better stronger longer higher shorter wider thinner - we are barrelling down the highway to super-connectivity at such a pace that we won't even have the opportunity to blink when we pass that point. And then, from Super- to Hyper-Connectivity.

At some point (presumably) our technology will fail us. Electrons can only be whipped faster to a certain point, even light-speed computation won't satisfy us for long. We need to look beyond the nuts and bolts of our current thinking and look for different ways to satisfy the powerful urge to communicate.

I often muse that we won't really be satisfied until we gain the ability to communicate at the speed of thought, the speed of predictive instant-icity. Yes, I just made that up, but probably that's the result of trying to describe something that doesn't yet exist.

Someplace somewhere recently I was reading that the human brain communicates at hyper-speed. The point of the article was that the physical properties of our neurons and the synaptic reactions were limited to the physical/chemical properties of the nerves, etc. themselves. The point being that our thinking is faster than the physical properties our bodies could sustain.

Simply put, we think faster than our bodies should allow us to.

Certainly, someone, somewhere will figure out the mechanics (quantum or otherwise) of this enigma. But the analogy is hidden in there. We long for, we yearn and strive for that same kind of connectivity with others which we experience inside our own minds.

Effectively, we yearn for an almost telepathic connectivity. Who was it that said "Everything Old is New again..."?

Imagine a world where the Internet was instantly accessible. Perhaps not the WWW as we know it now. What if, for instance, we could plug into the echoes Plato, Socrates, Tesla, Einstein, you, me - the world?

If we are all drops in an ocean of reality, surely we must be able to connect with one another in some way other than through mechanistic playthings? Surely, a "meeting of the minds" must be possible?

Perhaps we are paving the way for this with our toys and machinery. Perhaps we are creating a consciousness of connectivity that is pushing us into Hyper-Connectivity. And, methinks, if I am connected to you in a way that is as intimate and immediate as that which I can envisage, perhaps then I will understand you, and you will understand me.

Perhaps that Hyper-Connectivity will enable us to become the Creative Genii (Geniuses) that we truly are. Perhaps when we cannot hide in compartmentalised secrecy, wars and misunderstandings and deceit can no longer stand in the light of Hyper-Connectivity.

What a world would that be! Bring it on, bring it strong! I'm up for it right now - so where do I plug in? What a way to burst into 2010! I can't wait!"
